Ariane Cherbuliez

Ariane Cherbuliez is a facilitator and coach for leaders and teams to help them be sustainably productive, while feeling authentically inspired. Her work focuses on activists, education, science, and non-profit teams in general, as well as corporate teams experiencing unexpected structural and cultural changes (i.e. a merger, change of leadership, layoffs, etc). Ariane's coaching style, developed over the past ten years, is like a jungle gym - lots of new perspectives and unexpected twists and turns. Her clients report that they end their sessions with increased vitality and clarity about who they are and what the next step is in order for them to accomplish what matters most. Ariane illuminates the difficult issues and how to broach talking about them, thereby engaging individuals and teams in necessary conversations. Free to realize their own potential, clients have the newfound confidence to accept daunting challenges head on. Ariane has a gift for customizing her training and presentations to match her clients' current needs and visions for their future.

Ariane received her bachelor's degree in math from Brown University, and went on to be an award-winning math teacher, receiving her Master's in Education from Lehman College. Her career experienced a metamorphosis however, when she earned her MBA with honors from Simmons College. Ariane has trained in Organization and Relationship Systems Coaching and is accredited as a Certified Professional Co-Active Coach through the Coaches Training Institute. She is one of 25 Partners at Team Coaching International. She offers 360 feedback to individuals using the Booth Company Clark-Wilson Task Cycle and Lominger Voices surveys, and to teams using the Team Diagnostics Assessment. In addition to her private practice with individuals and teams, Ariane coaches for corporate and government clients, such as BMW, Merck, the US Navy, and the EPA. She also trains and supervises coaches in the final phase of their certification studies at The Coaches Training Institute. Ariane offers workshops on a range of topics, such as Coaching Skills in the Workplace, Giving and Receiving Feedback, and Designing Powerful Working Relationships.
